Problems Will Be Discussed by Governors

SESSIONS HAVE BEGUN

Conference Called by President Roosevelt Busy at Work

Will Consider Conservation of Country's National Resources —A Remarkable Gathering

Washington, May 13.—The transformed East Room greeted the throng of State governors, federal officials, scientists, and public men at the White House today when they assembled for the first session of the conference called by President Roosevelt to consider the subject of the conservation of the natural resources of the country.

In the center was a desk upon which President Roosevelt will personally wield the gavel during all the sessions. Forty-one state and territorial governors were seated directly in front of the rostrum. The conference was summoned to consider questions of forestry, land reclamation, irrigation, mining and sanitation.

Five subjects are scheduled for consideration which are entirely separate from conservation. These are, first, a plan for a universal divorce law including classification of offenses for which a decree may be granted and simplification of methods of procedure second, a plan for extradition of criminals from one state to another upon telegraphic demands by governors; third, a plan for universal agreement regarding treatment of tuberculosis in cattle fourth, a plan for the care and segregation of consumptives fifth, a plan for better supervision and observance of quarantine regulations.

Such a gathering has been unprecedented in the history of the country. Only seven governors were absent when this morning's session began, those of California, Oregon, Georgia, Massachusetts, Texas, Tennessee and Florida. Every governor is accompanied by three conferees.

The conference has brought together nine presidential possibilities, Roosevelt, Knox, Cannon, Fairbanks, Hughes, Gray, Johnson, Bryan and Folk. Taft is absent. Two noted captains of industry, Andrew Carnegie and James J. Hill are present and a score of labor leaders, including President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, and John Mitchell.

MOTHER

DRAWS SUSPENDED JAIL SENTENCE FOR PERMITTING • DAUGHTERS TO TEND BAR.

State Examiners Here—Ditch Hearing, Truancy Case and General Court News.

The case of the State of Ohio vs. Elizabeth Bucksar, charged with neglecting her two children, Anna, aged 10, and Mary, aged 14, by permitting and causing them to sell intoxicating liquors in her saloon, was heard in the juvenile court Wednesday morning. The affidavit alleged that Mrs. Bucksar had caused her two little girls to sell intoxicating drinks in her saloon on Wilson street, between the creek and Union street, on the 8th, 9th and 10th of May, and at other times. Mrs. Bucksar, when arraigned pleaded not guilty, and the two little girls also denied being in the saloon. The testimony of the witnesses, however, was positive and convincing, and the court found the woman guilty, and sentenced her to one month in the county jail. However, as it was the first offense charged against her in the juvenile court, and the woman said that she had quit the saloon business, and promised to properly care for her children in the future, the court said that sentence would be suspended during good behavior. He gave the woman a severe lecture, however, telling her in plain terms what the duties of a mother were to her children, assuring her that she will be very carefully watched in the future, and that if she improperly treats the little girls any more, they will be taken from her and sent to the Girls' Industrial School at Delaware, and that she would be sent to jail.

BAWDEN

It is Said Questioned the Divinity of Christ

NEW LIGHT UPON CASE

Students are Loyal and Rally to Free Thinker's Support

Issues Statement and Regrets Notoriety Which He is Receiving.

Cincinnati, May 13.—A new light yesterday was thrown on the case of Henry Heath Bawden, professor of philosophy at the University of Cincinnati, whose resignation has been demanded by President Charles William Dabney supposedly on account of his radical views upon the matrimonial question, by the statement of an instructor at the university closely in touch with the work of the professor. It is owing to Prof. Bawden's views on Christianity, he believes, that the differences between him and Dr. Dabney occurred.

"Whatever private views Prof. Bawden may entertain upon the problem of the sexes," he said, "I believe the real cause of the present trouble lay in his attitude toward Christianity as he expressed it on a number of occasions before his classes. Prof. Bawden holds some decided views toward Unitarianism. He believes in a Supreme Being, but he also questioned the divinity of Christ. He has been very outspoken on the subject before his classes, only recently declaring before one class that the song, 'Come to Jesus' was 'tomfoolery.' Christ, he asserts, was a great philosopher and a great teacher, but he was not a deity. I once remarked to him that the attitude he assumed in his classes would get him into trouble.

"I would not be a teacher of philosophy," he declared, "if I could not teach philosophic conclusions."

"Prof. Bawden's views have been misrepresented. He does not believe in the indiscriminate intermingling of sexes; but in a process of natural selection in which the sexual relations would only supplement a mutual affinity of purpose based on a high standard of comradeship. Prof. Bawden looked upon the Vassar woman as his intellectual affinity."

A movement was yesterday started among the university students to present a public petition through the newspapers to the Board of University Trustees asking that Prof. Bawden be retained despite his views on matrimony, which, they say, he has never aired in the classroom. A large number of the students, however, do not believe that a petition would be effective. Such action, they declare, failed in the case of Prof. Royal L. Melendy last year, and would probably be received in the same way in the present instance.

In behalf of a large number of the students Isaac Wise, Jr., son of the late Rabbi Isaac M. Wise, appeared yesterday before Mayor Markbreit and implored him to take some action to have Prof. Bawden retained. Wise declared that he voted the sentiment of the students, as well as of a large portion of the faculty, in saying that Prof. Bawden was an acquisition to the institution that he should be retained, if for no other reason than to establish the principle of free thought and free speech.

Rev. H. Heath Bawden, father of Prof. Bawden and the latter's brother-in-law, Prof. Herriox, of the University of Chicago had failed to bring about a reconciliation between the professor and Mrs. Bawden. Rev. Mr. Bawden left yesterday for his home at Cambridge, Mass. Mrs. Bawden spent the day in making social calls. She was very reticent, however, about the present trouble. She would make no statement other than those already published. Her attorney, Judge Judson Harmon, refused to discuss the affair other than to say that he has been a lifelong friend of his client.

Bawden Told Poems.
Prof. Bawden talked very frankly yesterday, regarding his "free love" views, and, in fact, went even further than in his formal statement to the public. He sat in his apartment in the annex of the Auburn Hotel, Mt. Auburn, and freely showed the manuscript of his books and poems. He read extracts at length to show how he stood on certain delicate questions. He seemed to take especial pride in a number of his love poems, of which he had nearly 100. One of these was evidently the one to which Mrs. Bawden referred in connection with the young lady at Vassar, and the scandal that occurred there. He read this poem with much effect, but absolutely refused to allow a copy to be made of it or even any quotations to be taken. This refusal also extended to the other love poems, but those on general topics he generously offered for publication.

The poem to the Vassar woman speaks of the "first awakening of burning passion in my breast," and certainly makes a new record for warmth in poetical effort. Olgeron Swinburne, in comparison, is a dealer in ice, and Shakespeare, who, no doubt thought "Venus and Adonis" somewhat torrid, might well hang his head in the blazing effluence of Bawden's amatory effusions. While the Vassar epistle is unsurpassed, it is far from the only "hot member." Several other of the love poems radiate equal heat. It is the professor's idea to publish all these in book form and he believes that they will have a very large sale, which they certainly will, if there's no interference.

Many Are Also Seriously Injured and Town of Louisville is Almost Destroyed.

Omaha, Neb., May 13.—Eighteen persons were killed and more than a dozen seriously injured, according to reports received today of the havoc wrought by a tornado which swept Omaha and the country to the south late yesterday. The greatest loss of life is reported at Louisville where Mrs. Frank Hester was killed, and seven men were killed outright in a sand pit in which they had sought safety. Two other unidentified men were killed here. Reports from Louisville indicate that half the town was wrecked.

Canton, O., May 13.—Bishop Horstmann, of the Catholic diocese of Cleveland, was stricken here today just after mass at St. John cathedral. He is in a serious condition. Dr. Portman worked for some time before he could restore the patient from a faint into which he had fallen. Father McGuire says the bishop is somewhat improved, but is very ill. The doctor refuses to make any statement. Bishop Horstmann was here to confirm several classes.

ENLISTED MEN

WERE GUESTS OF SAN FRANCISCO SOCIETY LADIES AT A GRAND BALL.

Highest Officers of Fleet in Grand March With the Sailor Laddies—Enjoyable Occasion.

San Francisco, May 13.—A real novelty marked the fleet entertainment program when the blue jackets and petty officers were the guests of honor at a reception and ball given at the auditorium under the auspices of the exclusive California club.

Women high in the ranks of San Francisco society danced with the enlisted men, and in the two divisions of the grand march that marked the opening of the ball there were a number of the highest officers of the fleet in line with the men. The function was marked by much of the decorative splendor that has characterized the reception to the officers.

All first class liberty men and all petty officers were the guests of honor and they thoroughly enjoyed the attention paid them.

PINKERTONS WORKING

Prosecutor Claims That He Has Evidence to Con- vict Lamphere

Body Has Not Been Fully Ident- ified as That of Mrs. Gunness.

Laporte, Ind., May 13.—Following a statement made by Rev. E. A. Schell at Baltimore that Ray Lamphere had made a partial confession to him of his part in the Gunness tragedy, a crisis in the case is expected today. Lamphere is in a state of collapse and the authorities look for a statement from him within a few hours. Rev. Mr. Schell declared Lamphere promised a "complete confession" in June. The disappearance of two more men and one woman was reported to Sheriff Schmutzer today.

Laporte, Ind., May 13.—Evidence to establish the identity of three additional victims of Mrs. Bella Gunness was the most positive development of a day filled with contradictory happenings here.

Both prosecution and defense received setbacks from the discoveries and revelations, but on the whole substantial progress was made toward bringing the case to the stage where it will be transferred to the courts.

The report of the four physicians who conducted the post-mortem examinations on the bodies found in the ruins of the Gunnis home April 28 were given to the coroner's jury yesterday. They fail to establish the manner in which the woman and her three children met death, and it is probable that the coroner's jury will return an open verdict regarding them.

The procedure in Indiana does not provide for coroners' juries, so the findings will be the individual conclusions of Dr. Mack.

Dr. Mack said that he had no idea as to what his return will be. "I never saw Mrs. Gunness or her children that I know of," he said. "There is nothing in evidence yet, so far as I am concerned, to establish the identity of the victims of the fire, and consequently, I am without an opinion, official or otherwise, in this regard."

Prosecutor R. N. Smith is still collecting evidence which he asserts will connect Ray Lamphere with the deaths of Mrs. Gunness and her three children and in this work he is being aided by the sheriff and the Pinkerton operatives whom the latter has called in as helpers.

It is possible that the case against Lamphere may be presented to the grand jury before the coroner's jury reaches a decision in the matter.

The grand jury is already in session and according to present indications will have cleared up the minor details before it within a day or two. This will give the inquisitorial body an opportunity to take up the Lamphere and Gunness charges about Friday, if not earlier.

The new victims of Mrs. Gunness are supposed to have been John Moe of Elbow Lake, Minn.; Henry Gerhalt of Scandinavia, Wis., a small town near Iola, from which Ole O. Budberg came, and George Brady of Tuscola, Ill. The evidence that these three were victims of Mrs. Gunness is somewhat indefinite.

Moe has figured in the case before this. Emil Greening, now of Oklahoma City, told of his having been at the farm in December, 1906, about the time that Jennie Olsen disappeared, and Ray Lamphere said that Mrs. Gunness had sent him to Michigan City to meet a man named John Moe last January.

The word concerning Gerhalt came in a letter signed M. Gerhalt and dated Iola, Wis., on March 12, 1905, saying that he was going to work for Mrs. Gunness near Laporte. Several letters were received from Gerhalt describing the farm and expressing satisfaction with the place.

The last of these communications was dated July 4, 1905. Gerhalt's brother wrote to Mrs. Gunness in December following, and was told that Henry had left the farm to go to Chicago.

The evidence regarding George Brady of Tuscola, Ill., is less definite. It is reported that he left that town in July, 1905, saying that he was going to Laporte to marry Mrs. Gunness.

An additional factor clinching the identification of one of the corpses as that of Ole O. Budberg of Iola, Wis., came to light during the day when a letter from the Farmers' State bank of that town was given to Coroner Mack. It contained the number of the watch purchased by him in Iola on Feb. 28, 1907. These were found to correspond with those on one of the timepieces picked up in the debris on the Gunness farm.

Baltimore, May 13.—That Ray Lamphere, charged with the burning of the Gunness home and the death of its occupants near Laporte, Ind., made a statement connected with the case to Rev. E. A. Schell of Laporte, was admitted by Mr. Schell yesterday. The latter, however, who is pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Laporte and a delegate to the Methodist Episcopal general conference here, refused to divulge anything as to its nature.

"My lips are sealed," said Mr. Schell. "I got these things in the confidential. I find that the prosecuting officers were 'sweating' Lamphere and I appealed for fair play in his behalf. I said that he should be allowed to have a lawyer and I told them so."

Mr. Schell said that he has no doubt that Mrs. Gunness is alive. Pressed last night as to the details of the statement made to him by Lamphere, he said that the statement did not include a confession that Lamphere set fire to the Gunness house, but related exclusively to matters that had transpired a month or more ago.

The committee from Newark was instructed to make a written application to the board, accompanied by the blue prints of the improvements to be made. These will be submitted this week and are to be referred to the attorney general to determine the legality of the plan, after which, if he favors it, the next steps will be taken to make the filling along the principal street crossings.

DEATH

Claims Man Known as Leading Amer- ican Gambler

IS FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

Thought That Death May Not Have Come Naturally

Roosevelt Called Him "The Wick- edest Man in all New York."

New York, May 13.—The district attorney's office through Coroner Julius Harburger, today started a thorough investigation into the facts leading up to the death of "The" Allen, pool room king, who died last night at his Eighth street home. "The" Allen, known for 15 years as the leading American gambler, had been ill for a long time with locomotor ataxia. Recently he offered $25,000 for a cure.

Last night Allen suddenly took a turn for the worse and was found unconscious in his bed. Death followed shortly. The district attorney's office notified Coroner Harburger to investigate as certain persons intimated death did not come naturally.

When President Roosevelt was police commissioner of New York "The" Allen was in the heyday of his success as a gambler. Within a stone's throw of police headquarters Allen maintained a gambling house he had so protected that police raids became wrecking parties. Rams were used in battering down Allen's front doors, and on account of the inaccessibility of the place and Allen's defiance of the law, he was characterized by Roosevelt as "the wickedest man in New York." He had been arrested more than 300 times.

Allen was a veteran of the Civil war and his father was a Methodist minister. He leaves an adopted daughter. His wife died in 1903 after hearing that her husband had been arrested for the 268th time.

STATE BOARD APPOINTMENTS.

Columbus, May 13.—E. S. Baird, former city engineer of Dayton, was chosen by the State Board of Public Works today as field engineer in charge of the Miami and Erie canal improvement. John A. Hanlon, of Coshocton, was re-appointed engineer in charge of the improvements of the northern division of the Ohio canal.

WILL BUILD NEW RESIDENCES

Plans are now being prepared for a fine new residence to be erected by Dr. A. T. Speer on the East Church street property adjoining his residence, now occupied by his office building. It is the expectation of the doctor to start work on the new structures within a month or six weeks.

The office will be removed to a lot in the rear of the present site, adjoining a part of the Lingafelter property purchased by Judge C. W. Seward. The office building will be added to and reshaped into a neat, modern dwelling. Judge Seward will also build on his lot at an early date, so it is expected that by the end of the year the entire space along the alley in the rear of the Lingafelter house will be built up in modern residences.

FEMININE TOPICS

The present mod blummed shaped hats have crowns proportionately tall and broad and they are given an amount of trimming in keeping with them. But many others which do not boast of more than a three-inch brim or even a little less cannot be described otherwise than as quite big hats, therefore we may conclude that it is really the crown and trimming which count.

The general tendency in business, in manufacturing, and everywhere is to reduce expenses. This calls for a reduction in living expenses as well. It is during such a time that it is eminently important to buy our necessities from a dependable store, where dependable qualities are sold. It is not always true that high priced goods only are good. The medium grades if bought from a reliable store often give as much wear as the higher priced kind. The buying advantages of The Powers-Miller store make it possible to sell the dependable serviceable kind of merchandise at about what you pay for the inferior sort. Then, too, everything bought at this store bears the guarantee of the store as well as the guarantee of the maker. If you are not already a customer of this store then especially at this time it is to your advantage to become one.

Very few men become drunkards because they like liquor. It is frequently the moderate drinkers, who, before he realizes his condition, has become a drunkard. The nervous system, having become accustomed to stimulants, is unable to do the same amount of quality work without liquor. Hence the victim drinks more and more. This is a state of disease and should be treated by Orin. It destroys the desire for liquor so that the drink is not missed. There is no loss of time or detention from work when it is used.

Orin is prepared in two forms: No. 1, the secret remedy, which can be used in food or drink without the knowledge of the patient; No. 2 for those who take the remedy of their own free will. Both forms are guaranteed. A registered guarantee in every box.

Treatise on how to cure drunkenness free on request. The Orin Co., Washington, D. C. The price of either form is $1 a box, making the cost of the complete cure less than one-tenth what is usually charged at sanitariums, with a guarantee that the expense will be nothing unless a cure is gained. Mail orders filled in plain sealed package on receipt of price.

Orin is for sale by Frank D. Hall.

CHANGES AT ORPHIUM.

Commencing next Monday Manager Lawrie of the Orphium, will present two entirely varied bills a week at the popular little vaudeville theater, changing the acts on Thursday.

This plan is one that is being offered by Sun and Murray in a number of their more popular theaters, thus relieving the monotony that is bound to accompany even a first class bill holding the boards for a solid week.

The Sun and Murray theater at Mansfield has been giving two bills each week with great satisfaction to the patrons, and now arrangements have been made whereby Newark and Mansfield will exchange bills twice each week, performers appearing in this city the first of the week, to go to Mansfield for the balance of the time, and vice versa.

For Friday night's special act, the management has been fortunate enough to secure the "Wa Hoo" quartet of the Ohio State university, a Columbus organization that proves a winning attraction at every appearance in or outside of the Capitol City. It is composed of C. E. Lattimer, first tenor; W. D. Barrington, second tenor; B. F. Pierce, baritone, and J. P. Calderwood, bass, and travels under the management of Bailey Cross.

The regular bill for this week is first class. The headliner, "Creo," continues to puzzle and please, while John Hawkins, the expert jumper, comes a close second in drawing power. Lizzie Wilson's German comedy and songs go well and have been winning applause. West and Benton are good singers and pretty dancers, Mr. Benton's "George Primrose" dance being without doubt, the feature of the turn. The song and pictures complete a most entertaining performance.

CARNIVAL.

Among the additional attractions at the carnival on West Main street, which is being patronized by big crowds every night, are the following:

Wilson and Norwood present the western melodrama, "The Rocky Mountain Wolf."

The Asiatic Wonder.

The largest fish ever captured alive, measuring 20 feet in length and 6 feet in width.

The Ferris wheel and merry-go-round.

Palmistry.

Phring's spectacular electric fountain will join the carnival in Weston, Ohio.

The two La Gorans in their free trapeze work.

AUDITORIUM.

Now that we have installed our own Powers picture machine, Tuesday evening and are getting the most perfect moving picture possible on Newark's electric current, which is alternating, we are now in the field to advertise strongly and can guarantee our patrons satisfaction and with still greater improvements coming in a real theater with a regular orchestra. Always comfortable and safe.

ELLERY'S BAND.

W. H. Kinross, manager of Ellery's band, one of the foremost organizations of its kind in the United States, is registered at the Hotel Warden. Manager Kinross is negotiating for the appearance of the band in a Sunday concert at Buckeye Lake Park in the near future. The organization carries 84 playing men and two French soloists, formerly prominent in the Metropolitan Opera company.

The members of the senior class are Mable Wallace, Ella Rogers, Lura Beard, Hazel Harter, Milda Swartz, Allan Crow, Walter Davis, Oscar Duthimer and Charles Buell.

The Pataskala and Jacksontown High school ball teams played here on Saturday afternoon. The score was 2 to 1 in favor of the home team. On next Saturday afternoon the Elms team will play here.

Mrs. William Hartman of Newark, visited the first of the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carlin.

Mrs. Chas. Prymante was the guest Sunday of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Collins at their home in Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Davis and daughter Williametta spent Sunday in Hebron with Mrs. Kate Davis.

Mrs. Jesse Wise of Newark visited Monday with her mother, Mrs. Park Dennis.

Miss Edith Walters of Buckeye Lake has been spending several days with her aunt, Mrs. John Hall.

Helen Lewis, Zoa Garrison, Carrie Beard, Pearl Kendal, Joseph Frymante, Chadwin Jury and Walter Orr, from our schools, attended the Bexwell examination at Newark Saturday.

Misses Rebekah and Elizabeth Crist delightfully entertained with a fish dinner on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Coffman, Mr. Robert Campbell, Mr. John Duthimer and Mrs. Oliver Fulk of Newark.

Mrs. Mary Campbell is visiting her sister, Mrs. Sarah Prior, at Outville.

The exposition being arranged for 1912 at Tokio will cover 292 acres.

A Mistaken Idea

Some people build or buy a home and give a mortgage payable in a term of years, thinking it will be easy to pay the mortgage when due. They seldom pay more than the interest, and the principal remains unpaid.

On our weekly or monthly payment plan (just like rent) the principal is constantly being reduced. Let us explain our method of loaning.

It's All Food

Not merely all wheat. Plenty of foods are all wheat without being all food.

Maple-Flake is all food because our process makes all the starch digestible.

That process takes 96 hours. It is so expensive that other makers don't use it. They think you would rather save five cents per package. But would you?

Let us tell you the facts, and see.

First, our wheat is steam-cooked for six hours. Think of that—for six hours!

Then we cure it. Then flake each berry so thin that the full heat of our ovens goes through. Then we toast the flakes 30 minutes in a heat of 400 degrees.

Think of that—30 minutes at 400 degrees.

All that is essential. No cheaper method can make the starch all digestible.

Starch, to be digestible, must be made soluble. The particles must be separated so the digestive juices can get to them.

The shorter the process, the less starch will digest. The rest is worse than wasted. It ferments and disturbs the stomach.

The chief cause of gas on the stomach is that fermented starch.

Maple-Flake is the food that's all food. The one wheat food that's all nourishment, because it all digests.

It's the ideal food for children. So we make it delicious by cooking the wheat in pure maple syrup. The flavor is so tempting that children demand it.

It is better—don't you think?—to entice children, rather than force them, to eat the food that is best for them?

The only food served in individual packages in hotels, clubs, cafes, and on dining cars.

ILLUSTRIOUS CAREER OF JUDGE HARMON

Judson Harmon was born in Hamilton county, seven miles from Cincinnati, Feb. 9, 1846. He was given his early education by his father, who had been a school teacher and had been a Baptist minister. He was graduated from Denison university at Granville in 1868. In 1892, the college honored him with the degree of LL.D.
After he left college, Judge Harmon entered the old Cincinnati Law school and was graduated from it in 1869.
In 1876, he was elected judge of the common pleas court in Hamilton county, but a few months after taking his place on the bench was unseated by a contest of his election in the Ohio senate. The senate was Republican and the Hayes-Tilden contest was at the same time on before the electoral commission.
In 1878, Judge Harmon was elected a judge of the superior court by a large majority. In 1883 he was re-elected and served with Judge Milton
F. Manning, Alfred Yapple and J. B.
Foraker, now United States senator.
March 7, 1887, Judge Harmon resigned his place on the bench.
June 8, 1895, Judge Harmon was appointed attorney general of the United States.
During his term as attorney general, Judge Harmon argued an unusual number of cases in the United States supreme court. The most noted was that against the Trans-Missouri Freight association, in which the Sherman anti-trust act first was applied to combinations of railroads.
Judge Harmon also began similar suits against the Freight Traffic association and the Addyston Pipe company and others. All these suits were won for the government and established the law as it was later applied to the Northern Securities case.
Judge Harmon succeeded also in having United States marshals attorneys and other court officials placed on a salary instead of a fee basis. He secured the settlement of the government's second lien on the Union Pacific railroad by the payment of principal and interest. While Judge Harmon was in office the Venezuela controversy with Great Britain arose, and his time also was taken up with the work of stopping filibustering expeditions against the Spanish in Cuba.
When Judge Harmon was appointed attorney general by President Clevelland, Judge William H. Taft was toastmaster at a banquet tendered Judge Harmon in Cincinnati by the Hamilton County Bar association. At his banquet Judge Taft paid to Judge Harmon the following glowing tribute:
"We are here because we know that he is eminently qualified to discharge the duties of his office with unbounded credit to his country, the administration, to us, his friends, and to himself. When the head of the supreme court asks Harmon, 'What business is there before this court?' we know that there will respond a man whose broad and liberal mind, splendid intellect and vigorous grasp of legal principles will represent 'the best of all that has been handed down to us by the traditions of the bar. Born and brought up in this community, taught by his parents that everything in this country was in the reach of the man who would honestly strive after it, of vigorous mind and body, even temper, good digestion the softest and stoutest heart, Judson Harmon has moved onward and upward with no man to grudge him a single honor which he has won."

desire to relieve his wife of any connection with bringing about the trouble with the university. He denied emphatically that she had made to Dr. Dabney the revelations which had caused the demand for his retirement. He said that the peculiar relationship of himself and his wife, the fact that they lived in different houses, had led to much gossip among their acquaintances in Mt. Auburn. This talk had reached some of his friends, and they had gone to him to give advice. While repulsing all attempts to interfere in his domestic affairs, he had unhesitatingly told them his views regarding marriage. In this way, he said, his peculiar theories had come to the knowledge of Dr. Dabney, and then followed the interview in which the president denounced the professor as a coward.

Naturally there is a suspicion that something must have occurred recently to cause the revelations regarding the Vassar episode and the expose of the professor's "free love" theories. In the stories current Mrs. Bawden is not acquitted of all connection with the springing of the sensational disclosures. When asked yesterday if there was a woman in the present case, Prof. Bawden said emphatically: "I decline to answer that question."

Leaving his home yesterday, a bright little boy playing on the other side of the street cried to him "Hello, papa." "Hello, Arthur," was the rather chilly answer. Then turning, the professor remarked with some emotion: "There will come the wrench."

Prof. Bawden's Statement.

The following is the formal statement which Prof. Bawden prepared yesterday morning and gave to the public as explaining his views on social and other relations:

"I believe in sincerity as the fundamental basis of social relationships and organization. For this reason I am no longer willing to hold an official position in a social institution on the assumption that I stand for doctrines which I do not hold. I do not understand that in a municipal or state institution, in this free country of America, either President of Boards of Directors attempt to put a halter on the thought or speech of the experts they employ in the various departments of the university. Society, in the laws, customs and conventions of civilization, has provided an elaborate machinery for expressing the will of the majority to the individual. But it has not a correspondingly adequate mechanism for getting the reaction of the individual point of view upon the social will. In our democracy, where every individual is supposed to have the opportunity to make his contribution in determining these laws, customs and conventions, the individual ordinarily must possess either money or social influence in order to secure a hearing I maintain that this is not just."

"I believe that it is every man's right to have a square deal, and that if a man is sincere and straightforward with fellowmen he will get it. For this reason I am employing the social organism called journalism, in order to bring before the public certain beliefs of mine which, as a private citizen, of course, might not be of interest to any one else but which becomes of public interest because they are assigned as the grounds for my removal from office in a public institution. I have reflected long and deeply on the profound issues here involved, and have chafed under the false position in which I have felt myself placed by being supposed to believe things I do not believe. But I have been deterred from making any public statement before by a recognition of my own immaturity and a desire to investigate more deeply into the subject. Nor should I make a statement now if it were not virtually forced upon me by the logic of recent events, in which I find that I may no longer remain silent and be true either to myself or to the others with whom my life is implicated.

"I have faith in the American public and in the daily press that they will deal fairly with a man who is sincere, truthful and honest in his differences with the social codes. I have sought to arrive at the truth concerning matters in which every thinking man and woman is concerned, and have tried to serve in my professional capacity in such a way as to advance that truth. If I am mistaken in my view of the truth, I wish to know it, and I know of no better way of finding out than by discussion. If anything appears in the papers of a vindictive or recriminating character, it will be in direct opposition to my wishes, for no personal animosities enter into the situation so far as I am concerned. I bear no ill to any individual. My only wish is to discover the social mind and the social will in this matter. After all, this is the era of ideas. The age of personal strife, like the age of brute force in warfare is drawing to a close. We are all seeking for the truth, not for each other's scalps. I have yet to meet the man who, deep in his heart, does not prefer co-operation to competition, and who wouldn't rather help than hurt the man with whom he differs. This is an impossible idealism, you say? The only way to find out is to put it to the pragmatic test—and I, for one, not only believe in the ideal, but believe that it will work in the case of the enlightened American public."

"I have no craving for notoriety. No one who knows my past life will accuse me of it. But a long, earnest effort to understand the deepest laws of life in society has finally forced me to the place where, as an officer in the most important institution society has produced—the school—I feel the call to stand publicly for the things which my very life in that institution has brought me to believe. I have no familiarity with the journalist's methods of bringing a subject to the attention of the public, but I have confidence that an honest, direct appeal will reach the public ear, and that, if treated in a straightforward way, the newspapers will support the truth."

"I have three books on my philosophical and educational views and a volume of poems ready for the press, and as soon as I can find a publisher, or the money to publish them myself, my views on these topics shall be made known. The first three books deal respectively with the new philosophy called pragmatism, with my theory of what the school should do for humanity, and with my teaching on culture and aesthetics. The volume of poems presents my views on sex and marriage, in both an indirect and a direct manner, thus supplementing the statement in prose which here-with appears:

"1. I believe in freedom of association of the sexes and in marriage based on comradeship. The only limit I would impose on sexual promiscuity would be the aesthetic ideal of comradeship, on the moral side, and the necessary restrictions of sturdiness on the physical side. Recognizing that this is an ideal not realizable immediately and requiring the gradual education of people to a sense of what it really means, I advocate, as a stepping-stone to better things, that divorce be made easier, while the responsibility for offspring be more carefully guarded. I have no socialistic program. I belong to no school of social economists. I do not expect the new era to come in a day nor by any but the slow processes of social evolution, but I do intend to make my contribution to that evolution by thus publicly setting forth the sincere views of a member of that very society which evolves. I emphatically do believe in marriage, but not in the mere conventional shell after the real thing has gone. In my statement of the ideal state, I do not insist that there must be what is commonly called love, but I do insist that comradeship is essential. This provides for the marriage de convenance which, while not ideal, is far better than domestic tragedy."

"2. For this reason I derogate the finality of marriage and the social stigma which attaches to divorce. Marriage in its present form narrows and restricts human experience. It does not tend to enrich life except where its externally limitative character disappears. Self-limitation because of love may or may not be narrowing, but a home without harmony between husband and wife is not a home to bring up children in. Fellowship, comradeship, is the only basis of a true marriage, and when, for any reason, this has vanished, the real immorality is to seek to keep up the outward form when the inward essence has fled. Yet this is just what existing social institutions, the laws of many states, religious sanctions and unwritten conventions impose, and what few self-respecting men and women, who have children for whom they are responsible, have the courage to resist. The noblest achievement one ever attains for another or for himself is when he trusts one on whom society has put a claim, to freely follow out the experiment of living in accordance with ideals different fundamentally from his own. I have two children, boys. When they grow up to be men I want to be able to look them in the face and say that I did all I could to make the world in which they were to live as near the ideal as possible."

"3. I believe with Plato that the state should subsidize maternity. I believe that the individual, not the family, is the proper unit of political and social organization, and that this is the only possible basis for the economic, social and intellectual emancipation of women. Maternity is the holiest event that happens in our social life—when a new member of society buds forth on the parent stem. It should be protected and revered wherever it appears, whether within or without the code. To cast social stigma on a woman who has become a mother outside of wedlock and on the innocent issue of such a union is an inhuman brutality only matched by man's stupid so-called chivalry to woman. True respect for woman does not constantly remind her that she is

Maternity is the holiest event that happens in our social life—when a new member of society buds forth on the parent stem. It should be protected and revered wherever it appears, whether within or without the code. To cast social stigma on a woman who has become a mother outside of wedlock and on the innocent issue of such a union is an inhuman brutality only matched by man's stupid so-called chivalry to woman. True respect for woman does not constantly remind her that she is

Chicago, May 13.—Prof. C. Judson Herrick, a member of the Neurology Department of the University of Chicago, who is a brother-in-law of Prof. Bawden and a lifelong friend, expressed surprise last night that Prof. Bawden had been asked to resign from the University of Cincinnati.

"I came back from Cincinnati a short time ago," he said, "and I did not know that such a crisis would arise. My visit was for a private reason purely. If it had to do with Prof. and Mrs. Bawden I cannot say now. I am not at liberty to discuss Prof. Bawden's views on marriage."

STABILITY OF FORTUNES

Experience has proven that fortunes invested in real estate have remained intact through more generations than when invested in any other form of property.

To the merchant and manufacturer, the owning of the property which he occupies means permanency of location. For the head of a family, the title to his home means the saving of rents and the possession of an asset constantly increasing in value. Values in real estate have been created by the growth of population. These are factors which tend to increase the demand for, and decrease the supply of real estate.

We are now building modern houses and will offer lots for sale, with or without houses, in my new addition, corner of Church and Eighth streets. Streets will be improved by paving, cement walks, gas and water to property lines. When all improvements are made these houses and lots will soon sell and you will have lost another opportunity to better your condition.

Can you afford to let this opportunity pass?

DR. THAD REAMY NOW UNCONSCIOUS

Venerable Physician Who Began His Distinguished Career Here is Very Ill.

Dr. Thad A. Reamy, a venerable Cincinnati physician who began the practice of medicine over 60 years ago in this county, is lying critically ill at the Clarendon Hotel in Zanesville with very little hope for his recovery.

Dr. Reamy is a brother of Mrs. Clementine C. Ball, 388 North Fourth street, and he is well known among the other physicians and residents of Newark.

After attending the meeting of the State Medical Society at Columbus last week, Dr. Reamy and his wife went to Zanesville to visit relatives. He was seized with a sudden illness during Monday night, but rallied slowly and continued to improve all day. At 6 o'clock Tuesday night he was again prostrated, and quickly lapsed into unconsciousness.

The attending physicians, Drs. Brush and Sutton, are hopeful that he may again rally, basing hope on his strong pulse and the fact that he rallied so slowly after the first attack.

Dr. Reamy began the practice of his profession at "Chickenville," near Clay Lick, but years ago he went to Cincinnati where he achieved fame and wealth. In speaking of his humble start in life Dr. Reamy once told a Newark friend that when he put out his "shingle" at the little log cabin east of Newark and paid for a load of wood he had just 75 cents as the sum total of his cash assets.

Probably no physician in the country is known better than Dr. Thad A. Reamy. In Cincinnati he has been recognized as the dean of the profession in the city for years.

Some years ago he founded the Reamy Hospital at Oak street and Reading road, Avondale. It is now the Bethesda Hospital. Dr. Reamy is about 70 years old, and his health has been failing for three years. In 1854 he graduated from the Starling Medical college in Columbus, and in 1861 was elected to the Legislature from Muskingum county.

During the same year he was appointed surgeon in the 122d Ohio regiment, O. V. I. In the later years of his life Dr. Reamy retired to a farm residence at Jones Station, O.

ST. LOUISVILLE COMMENCEMENT

The St. Louisville High school, under the efficient management of Superintendent C. P. Smith, has completed another year of very successful work.

Their commencement exercises were held on Saturday evening, May 9, in the Lutheran church, which was filled with an appreciative and well-pleased audience.

The program throughout was rendered in a manner highly complimentary both to the superintendent and class.

The oration of each of the five graduates showed deep thought and careful preparation, and was delivered in a manner that was truly masterly.

The class was one of which the patrons of the school should be proud. The exercises Saturday evening show more conclusively than words can tell that the school the past year has been making progress in the right direction. The following is the class with the subject of their orations:

Hallie S. Jones..... Night Brings Out the Stars
Earl L. Schorger..... We Face the Future
